SALE OF NEAR BEER ILLEGAL

When the Court of Quarter Session convened on Monday of this week the Court called the attention of the unstable of this county to the law relating to the sale of liquor and to the Brooks License Law. The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has ruled in many cases that the sale of a beverage containing any alcohol whatever, no matter how small, is a violation of the law unless the person selling the beverage has first obtained a license to sell liquor. In view of the fact that many merchants in Bedford county have been selling near beer and beverages containing less than one-half of one percent alcohol and that these merchants have been under the impression that such sales are legal because of the small percentage of alcohol contained therein, the instructions given to the constables of great concern to them. The constables have been instructed to report all violations of the law in this respect to court. As long as the Brooks High License Law is on the Statute Books no beverage containing any trace of alcohol can be sold without a license in Pennsylvania. The disposition of the officers seems to be not to prosecute merchants, who in good faith sold light beverages containing less than 1/2 of 1 per cent alcohol under the belief that they were not violating the law but prosecutions will be brought for all future violations. Of all this persons who sell beverages should take notice and heed this warning.

Mrs. Edward Straub.

New Baltimore, Jan. 17—Mrs. Edward Straub, aged 50, died yesterday morning at New Paris, Bedford county, where she had gone for medical treatment last Friday. Mrs. Straub is survived by her husband and several children. The body has been brought to the Straub home in this place. Funeral arrangements have not been completed. Edward Straub was formerly proprietor of the Mountain house at this place.

Cora M. McGirr

Miss Cora McGirr at her apartments on East John Street passed away on last Monday morning death being due to Uremic poisoning. She was born November 14, 1859 in Bedford township and was the daughter of Dr. Francis and Bridget McGirr. She is survived by one brother, Frank C. McGirr, Attorney-at-Law, Pittsburgh.

and three sisters, Miss Annie of Bedford and Misses Camillus and Delorus, of the Order of Mercy, Pittsburgh. Her funeral took place yesterday, Thursday at 9 A. M. from the Catholic church, Rev. Father McKinney, officiating. She was a sister to "Nico" McGirr, former editor of the Gazette.

Miss McGirr was an accomplished musician having been educated at St. Xavier's Academy, Beauty, Pa. She was for years organist at the Catholic church Bedford. Her body was laid to rest in the family plot in the old grave yard on East and John Streets.

Isaac Wolford

On last Wednesday at about 2 A. M. Isaac Wolford died at his home in New Buena Vista of Acute Indigestion. He was about sixty two years old and was the son of Samuel Wolford and was married to "Dot" Otto to which union there are four boys living, Emanuel, at Schellsburg, Colvin at New Paris, William at Cresaptown, W. Va. and Edward at Johnstown. He also has one brother, John, near Napier and two sisters, Mrs. Wolford at Hyndman and Mrs. Keifer of Manns Choice surviving.

He was buried in the Schellsburg cemetery after the funeral being preached by Rev. Winwood of New Paris, in the Reformed Church at New Buena Vista.

He was helping Samuel Sarver, to put a roof on his house when he complained of an acute pain over his heart becoming very sick at the start from which he never recovered.

Miss Lottie E. Taylor

Miss Lottie E. Taylor, oldest daughter of Hon. R. M. and Eliza Colvin Taylor, was born June 7, 1841 and died in her late home in Schellsburg, Jan. 15, 1921. She was highly educated and was noted for her intelligence and sweet disposition. She kept a portrait of Pres. James K. Polk, hanging in her room, he having held her on his knee, while a guest of her father in 1846. She is survived by two brothers, G. W. of Napier township and J. E. of Schellsburg, and one sister, Mrs. S. C. Burns of Franklin, Pa.

Her funeral was conducted by her pastor, Rev. B. V. Biddle of the Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. Metgar, of the Reformed church, and Rev. Mr. Kerr, of the Methodist church, Jan. 17. The family wishes to thank the many friends for their kind assistance rendered during her illness.

Franklin Roy Blackburn

The remains of Franklin Roy Blackburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewalt Blackburn of New Paris who left home April 30, 1918 as a soldier in the World War arrived home on Thursday, Jan. 13, 1921 and was accompanied by a soldier boy, a cadet of New York.

During the Argonne-Mense drive Mr. Blackburn was wounded in both thighs by machine gun balls, and was taken to Base Hospital, No. 35, France, where he contracted pneumonia and died, October 7, 1918, aged 30 years, 7 months and 6 days and was given a military burial in France.

On Saturday morning after a short service held at the home, the remains were taken to the United Brethren church where he became a member in 1908. The hearse was preceded by two flagmen and the New Paris cornet band, and these comrades, overseas soldiers, who acted as pall bearers accompanied the hearse on either side. Chester Culp, Guy Nicodemus and Earl Replogle of Schellsburg, Guy Miller of Ryot, Orvol Beegle and Wesley C. Wolf of New Paris.

Services were conducted by the Rev. J. Winwood who based his discourse from Jer. 22—10 "Weep ye not for the dead neither bemoan him but weep sore for him that goeth away; for he shall return no more nor see his native country." An enlarged photograph of the deceased soldier was placed on the top of the casket, and the large audience that filled the church to overflowing was permitted to view the picture. A choir of twenty singers with Mrs. Eugene Cuppett presiding at the organ furnished the singing. The Rev. Winwood was assisted in the services in the home and at the church by the Rev. J. L. Smith of the Evangelical church and the Rev. D. M. Gerr of the Methodist church. After the services were concluded at the church a large procession headed by the band proceeded to the Reformed cemetery where interment was made.

Of the many soldier boys furnished by the vicinities of Schellsburg, Pleasantville and New Paris, Mr. Blackburn was the only one not permitted to return. He is survived by his parents a brother, William D. Blackburn and a sister, Mrs. Emy Manges of Cairnbrook and a sister, Mrs. S. W. Kimmel of New Paris.

HOUSE FOLLOWS SETTING EN-LISTMENT AT THAT FIGURE

PERISHING REPORTED CITED AS AGAINST 150,000 MEN

Senator Reed Ridicules Idea of Probable War.

Washington, Jan. 19—Reduction of the American military establishment took a step backward this afternoon when the Senate revised its action of last Saturday and restored the army to a minimum strength of 175,000 men, instead of 150,000. The vote was 41 to 33.

Shortly after the House, by a vote of 285 to 4, adopted the Kahn resolution limiting enlistment to 175,000 Representatives Bee (Tex.), Blackman (Ala.) and Cuddy (Md.) Democrats and Cramtons (Rep. Mich.) voted against the resolution. The reversal in the Senate was not entirely a surprise, because strenuous efforts have been made since the adoption of the New resolution, as amended by Lenroot to remove the 150,000 limitation. After the vote on Friday notice of reconsideration was given by Senator Phelan.

He gave as a reason the statements made during the same day by Gen. Pershing and Secretary Baker. Both appeared before the Senate Military Affairs Committee and declared that the strength of the army should not be less than 200,000. Both pronounced 175,000 men the last notch and said 150,000 would prove extremely dangerous. Extracts were read this afternoon from the statements of Pershing and Baker.

Party Whip Cracked. The cracking of the Republican Party whip the belief that President-elect Harding favors the 175,000 figure, and a desire not to reduce the roll of Officers are giving as reasons for overturning the Senate action. This afternoon Senators Colt, Page and Curtis, who voted for an army of 150,000 men, voted for the 175,000 limitation. Gooding, the new Senator from Idaho sided with them. Senators Frelinghuysen, Fall, Penrose and Sherman, all Republicans who were not present Friday, voted the same way. So did Willis, who succeeded Harding.

It frequently was stated during the debate that many telegrams had come to Senators, urging that no reduction in the army be made below 175,000 men.

When debate opened Senator Reed (Dem., Mo.) spoke at length in favor of material reduction in the army. "I am delighted," said he, "to find that the same committee that a few months ago insisted on an army of 300,000 has now revised its views and is willing to reduce the army to 175,000. It is an indication that some of the old ideas that our government had before the war are beginning to filter through into the officials of Congress but in my judgment they haven't filtered far enough."

"I still demand to know why an army of 150,000 is not sufficient for the United States in a time of profound peace. We got along with an army of about half that size prior to the war. We have 2,500,000 trained men in the country, and if any trouble with Mexico should arise we could equip an army sufficient to meet that emergency."

NO CLUE TO SLAYER OF ANNAPOLIS NURSE.

Naval, Federal, County and City Authorities Are Balked in Investigation.

Annapolis, Md. Jan. 16—Naval Academy authorities are still without a definite clue to the murderer of Harriet M. Kavanaugh of Buffalo N. Y., nurse at the academy hospital, who met her death here Friday night.

The Board of Investigation, composed of naval officers, detectives from the Department of Justice, representatives of the County Sheriff's office and Annapolis police are convinced the crime was committed by a brute of the lowest type, possibly one with a deficient mentality.

An examination of the spot indicates that not once in a thousand times could such a crime have been committed without almost instant detection. The point, which is well lighted is within fifty yards of the residence of caretaker Casey, and seventy-five yards of the hospital.

The board is now calling every one who could possibly shed any light on any circumstances leading up to the crime or who had the slightest acquaintance with Miss Kavanaugh.

Examination of the adjacent ground shows that there is a pile of pipes of various sizes and weights just back of the caretakers house and that there is more pipe along the road which runs by the hospital. The criminal coming from either direction could easily have picked up a piece of pipe such as was found near the body.

Dr. E. R. Dooley and his wife of Buffalo arrived in Annapolis this afternoon and directed that the burial take place here. The funeral will be from the Catholic Church of the city to-morrow morning and Miss Kavanaugh will be buried in the Naval Cemetery at a point less than 100 yards from where she met her death.

2,500 EMPLOYEES OF PENNSYLVANIA WILL BE LAYED OFF

Men on Southern Grand Division Affected by Furlough Order.

Wilmington, Del. Jan. 18.—Approximately 2500 employees on the Southern Grand Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which has its headquarters here, will be laid off as a result of a general order for a twenty percent reduction in the working force, it was announced to-night.

The Southern Grand Division, which includes Delaware, Maryland, Norfolk and Baltimore Divisions, has a strength of nearly 16,000 men. MASKED BANDITS

HOLD UP TRUCK

Escape in Auto After Grabbing Twelve Sacks of Mail.

Chicago, Jan. 18—Five youthful bandits held up a United States mail truck at the Union Station here early today escaping in an automobile with 12 sacks of mail, 10 of which contained registered mail.

Police say that the best information obtained this morning indicates the pouches contained part of a federal Reserve Bank money shipment which was to have been placed on a train leaving for St. Paul, Minn., at 2:30 a. m.

The bandits surprised three postal employees guarding the pouches forcing them at the point of guns back into the truck, while the bandit car drew along side and the 12 mail bags were transferred to it. The robbery was accomplished in a few minutes.

Contained City Collections. The regular mail was composed solely of city collections, the police say. The registered mail bags were supposed to contain currency and bond whose value cannot be estimated yet.

One of the postal employees said that only a few minutes after they had arrived at the station with their truck the bandit car dashed up. The police believe the robbery was an inside job as the bandits seemed to have knowledge of the bank shipment as well as the time the truck would arrive and the number of men guarding it.

Wore Black Masks.

Thomas Carter, Richard J. Sliney and Philip Cahill, postal employees, said the five men none of whom appeared to be more than 20 years old all wore black masks and carried out the robbery in such a short time that the attention of a watchman and a railroad mail foreman working nearby was not attracted until the robbers were speeding away in their motorcar with the 12 pouches.

Carter who drove the mail truck said he believed the bandit car followed him from the postoffice to the station. The alarm was sent to the Federal Building, the City Detective Bureau and the Displeases Street Police Station. Several squads of officers were on the trail of the robbers within a few minutes.

RUNAWAY HORSE AT NEW BUENA VISTA

Tuesday Mr. Jacob Mowry and wife started to visit Mr. Mowry's brother-in-law, Mr. John Geller of West End. Just before they reached the farm of Mr. Samuel Bittner the horse became frightened and started to run. Mrs. Mowry grabbed one line which ran the horse into the fence before much speed was attained but both were thrown out and the buggy was demolished.

Mrs. Mowry sustained a broken left wrist and severe bruises about the head and shoulders while Mr. Mowry's collar bone was broken and he was bruised around the hips and back.

LESSON FOR JANUARY 23

PROMOTION IN THE KINGDOM.

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 20:17-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many.—Matt. 20:28.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 19:27-29:16; Mark 10:32-45; Luke 22:24-30.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Wanting More Than Our Share.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Win First Place.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Right and Wrong Ambitions.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Greatness Through Service.

I. Jesus Foretells His Death and Resurrection.

1. The King on His way to Jerusalem (vv. 17-19). This is His last journey to the beloved city. He took the twelve disciples aside from the group of traveling pilgrims to make known unto them what was before them. On the journey He went ahead of the disciples. The courage thus shown by the Lord amazed the disciples who were following in fear (Mark 10:32). "Christ, the conscious and certain sufferer, is courageous. His followers who had nothing to fear were afraid."

2. Betrayal and death foretold (vv. 18, 19). He went forward fully conscious of the awful tragedy of the cross. He for the third time since the transfiguration tells the disciples of His suffering and death, but they are so filled with their ambitious schemes that they do not understand Him. The treachery of Judas Iscariot; the fierce persecutions of the chief priests and scribes; the unjust judgment; the delivery to Pontius Pilate; the mocking; the scourging; the crown of thorns; the cross; the hanging between two malefactors; the nails; the spear; all were spread before His mind like a picture. Though He knew all this He deliberately pressed on. The joyous outlook upon the victory which would be accomplished by the shedding of His blood led Him forward. He went courageously, for He knew the time had come for the accomplishment of His Father's will.

3. The resurrection foretold (v. 19). Truly this would have been a dark picture had the resurrection not been made known.

II. The Ambitious Request of James and John (vv. 20-23).

1. The request (vv. 20, 21). This request was made by their mother. The request is for a place of prominence in the kingdom. It is right for mothers to be ambitious for their boys, but they should know that earth's pinnacles are exceedingly dangerous.

2. Jesus' answer. (vv. 22, 23). He spoke directly to the men, not to their mother, declaring that they knew not what they were asking. He showed them that the way to this position of glory was through suffering. The cup of which they were to drink was that of great suffering and agony. The positions which they craved were attainable, but in a very different way from what they apprehended. The way to the places of glory in the kingdom of Christ is through the path of lowly and self-forgetful service, even great suffering.

3. How to Be Truly Exalted (vv. 24-28).

1. The angry disciples (v. 24). When the ten heard of the request of James and John they were filled with indignation against them. Their displeasure did not arise from the fact that they were free from the same selfish spirit, but that these two had thrust themselves to the front; it was an admixture of indignation and jealousy.

2. Greatness among the heathen (v. 25). The rule of the world has always been by the strong hand. The standards have been not moral excellence, but wealth, station and power. Even today the reason one nation rules the other is that the one possesses sharper swords and heavier clubs than the other.

3. Greatness among Christ's disciples (vv. 26, 27). Here the standard is in sharp contrast. The way to the places of prominence in Christ's kingdom is the way of self-abasement. It is not wrong to be ambitious to be great, but the basis of true greatness is that which human selfishness seeks to avoid. There will be degrees of rank in Christ's kingdom, but this rank will be character, not position or authority.

4. Christ is the supreme example of greatness (v. 28). All who would be great should study and imitate Christ. Let them forget self and serve others, even to give their lives. This will eliminate all scrambling for place and power. The one grand test by which to know whether Christ's spirit controls one is whether he is serving or seeking to be served.

Christianity Is Still Alive.

The greatest tribute to the necessity of religion is, that it survives its outward forms; the greatest proof of the essential truth of Christianity is that in spite of the twaddle talked every Sunday in the name of Christ, Christianity is still alive.—H. R. Hawes.

My heart has been my instructor, and I wish it may make me more cautious and less simple.—Thomas a Kempis

The
"U.S." Walrus

Warm as an Arctic- washes off like a Boot

The "U.S." Walrus—worn by farmers everywhere

FOR years farmers have needed a high rubber overshoe—easy to put on and take off—warm and comfortable—one that could be easily cleaned of the dirt of the barnyard.

There's an overshoe like that ready for you this winter. With an all-rubber surface—snow-tight and water-tight—lined with soft, warm fleece—the U. S. Walrus is just the thing you've been looking for.

It slips right on over your leather shoes. You can work in sticky mud all day, but when you get home a pail of water or a rinse at the pump washes the U. S. Walrus as clean as when you started. No chance for dried mud to rot that smooth rubber surface!

At exactly the place where overshoes usually wear out first, the U. S. Walrus has been made strongest. Its sole consists of heavy layers of the finest rubber. All other points of strain are specially reinforced.

Ask your dealer to show you a pair of the U. S. Walrus. Examine for yourself their wonderful built-to-wear construction. After you've worn a pair for a day or two, you'll realize why farmers everywhere are buying them.

Other types of "U.S." Footwear— built for rough service

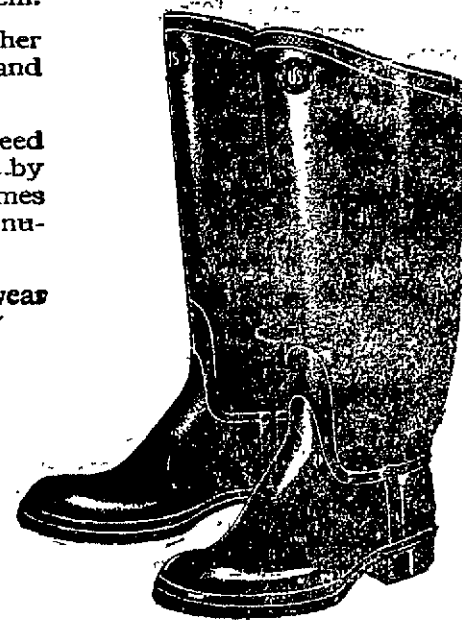

U. S. Boots have all the wear and comfort which the accumulated improvements of 74 years have given them.

U. S. Bootees lace on over the sock like a leather shoe. You can wear them all day long in mud and water—your feet will stay dry and comfortable.

The U. S. line of footwear has a type for every need—arctics, rubbers, "overs." Every one is backed by over half a century of experience. The rubber comes from our own plantations—the whole process of manufacture is supervised by experts.

Always look for the U. S. Seal—it means solid wear and long service for your money.

Mixup Was Too Much for Him.
Chester could not understand why Lloyd was called his half-brother. It was explained to him—I s father had married twice. He couldn't seem to grasp the idea, however. Lloyd soon married and was later divorced, all of which mystified Chester greatly. But when Lloyd married again his bewilderment was complete. "Dad," he implored, "what relationship is Lloyd to us now?"

Rough Oldtime "Sports."
Pugilistic encounters, dog fights, cock fights and similar performances were the ordinary forms of popular pastimes in the early part of the last century. Bull baiting was common, and even this did not afford sufficient amusement to the people in some of the northern towns, and Blackburn and Oldham exhibited a strange depravity by compelling old women to race in sacks!—Bailey's Magazine.

Some Evidence of Crime.

Where victim of a homicide was shot both through the head and body, his head and face frightfully mangled, his body dragged 40 yards down a bank, leaving a trail of blood, and there abandoned in the night, court's remark as to importance of case to commonwealth, and to defendant, and that it would certainly appear that some one was guilty of a most heinous crime, was not improper.—Commonwealth vs. Bednorki, Pa., 107 Atl. 666.

For the Blood— For the Liver— As a Tonic

Johnstown, Pa.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the help it has given me. I take it as a blood purifier and as a tonic to build me up when run-down, also for sluggish and inactive liver and it always gives quick relief. It builds up the entire system and is one of the best medicines I have ever found for a bad cold or deep-seated cough. 'Golden Medical Discovery' is an excellent family remedy and I am never without it in the home."—DANIEL A. MILLER, 167 Pine St.

How Many Colors for a Section?
Not long ago a train started out of Grand Central in two sections. After running a few miles the first section lost time, and the second, running ahead, was ordered to put up green signals and run as first section. As this train approached the next tower the dispatcher asked the signalman if the engine had put up signals. The signalman replied, by telephone, "Yes, he just put up the green and blew."—New York Central Magazine.

Fordson

Hitherto the farmer has woven the power of his own muscles with that of the ox, the mule, and the horse, in the development of agriculture. Practical Machinery for farming has come to him slowly. Where the value of machinery in labor saving in profit-making in usefulness, in comforts, in luxuries, has in the past been largely confined to the towns and the cities it is now open to the farmer who is beyond all question the very bone and sinew of civilization. Civilization grows upon the land, therefore the land is Father and Mother and Sustainer to the human race, and those who till the soil, who plow, sow and reap, are surely the essentials in human existence. Therefore Machine Power on the Farm is of the utmost importance and the Fordson Tractor comes to the farmer as the best, we believe, piece of machinery that has yet been devised for his use.

We want you to read the book "The Fordson at Work". It is free for the asking. Call in and get one. Drop us a card and we will mail you one without charge. This booklet is along the line of the usual Ford way of giving the testimony of the users, those who have tried out and who know the real value of the Fordson Tractor. This book shows the Fordson at work in some ninety different lines of activity and to the farmer it presents the most valuable evidence of an all-around serviceable, economical, labor-saving, and money-saving machine that has ever been placed upon the market. We can only get so many each month, so leave your order now.

A CHAPTER ON RAISINS.

Though the price of the wholesome raisin has increased from ten or twelve to thirty and thirty-five cents, we still hope to be able to afford the use of them as freely as of yore. The following are a few of the many ways of serving raisins:

Raisin Puffs.—Take one cupful of raisins, two cupfuls of stale bread crumbs, one cupful of boiling milk, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two eggs, one teaspoonful of butter. Pour the boiling milk over the crumbs; when cold add the sugar, salt and well-beaten eggs. Wash, dry and chop the raisins, add and mix well. Brush four custard cups with butter, put in the mixture and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with a lemon sauce.

Raisin Marmalade.—Take two cupfuls of seeded raisins, one cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of water, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, two cupfuls of strained apple sauce. Wash and dry the raisins, put through a meat chopper, add water and salt, and boil slowly for thirty minutes. Add lemon juice and apple sauce. Simmer thirty minutes or until thick. Put in jelly glasses and seal.

Raisins and Bananas.—Take one cupful of raisins, one cupful of bread crumbs, four cupfuls of bananas, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and one tablespoonful of butter. Brush the casserole with butter, put half of the bananas in the bottom, cover with bread crumbs and then with raisins which have been stewed and thickened; the salt is to be added to the raisins. Cover with the remainder of the bananas and sprinkle with sugar. Cover, put in a hot oven and bake twenty minutes; reduce the heat and leave twenty minutes longer. Serve hot.

Raisins stuffed with nuts make a nice confection. Take the large raisins, make a cut on one side, put in a blanched peanut and roll in powdered sugar.

STRANGE ANIMAL

By MURIEL GOODWIN.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Down the country road, as fast as the little fat legs could carry him, the yellow curls blowing in the breeze, the blue eyes saucer-size with mysterious knowledge, bounded little Tony. When he was within a few yards of a pretty rose-covered cottage, a tall, blue-gowned woman appeared at the door.

"Why are you running this hot day?" she asked.

Tony stopped, panting for breath. "Er—where's Dick?" he asked at last. Dick was his little chum next door.

"I should think you ought to know," answered the woman. "I am going to have company this afternoon, and I don't want you two to get into mischief," she added, as she disappeared within.

Just then an overalled boy came around the corner. Tony rushed to him, his forefinger on his lips. Then the two youngsters walked down the road together talking in low tones.

"I tell you what," whispered Tony. "If you could only get that tall hat, everything'd be great."

"But it might get hurt," ventured Dick.

"Pooh!" was Tony's scornful reply. "You can put it right back after."

"Oh, all right," agreed Dick, after some more urging. "But I don't want to lose my supper tonight. I saw Susie making raspberry tarts this morning."

"Humph," grunted Tony, contemptuously. "You're meant for a girl, I guess. We won't lose our supper if we're careful—anyhow, we can eat more breakfast in the morning."

"Well, I'll get that hat," interrupted Dick, as he turned in at the gate.

An hour later a tall, blue-gowned woman was serving lemonade to the members of the Ladies' Aid on her rose-covered piazza.

"It was the strangest creature," the demure lady was saying.

"Oh, tell us about it," smiled the fat lady with the pompadour.

"Well," continued the first speaker, "Hope read it in her new book. You see, she's been interested in some new 'ology' and she's been reading all about it. This was a new animal discovered in India. It was very interesting, with a high, flat back, a very tiny tail, and almost no perceptible head. It—"

"Mercy!" cried the postmaster's little wife in the bombazine dress. "What's that in the road?"

All eyes turned toward the road, and the strange animal was forgotten.

"Why, Mrs. Dolan!" exclaimed the

"It looks like a bundle some one has dropped. And did that animal really have no head?" she asked, turning to the demure lady.

"Hope read three or four pages before she found that the head was concealed under a—"

"Heavens!" shrieked Mrs. Dolan. "That thing just jumped!"

The demure lady was vexed at the second interruption. Everyone looked toward the road; there was surely a small, dark object in the middle of the road, but was too far away to be seen distinctly. In a moment it gave a slight jump.

"What did I tell you?" gasped Mrs. Dolan.

A few more gasps came from the group. The hostess rose and said she would investigate. Several started to join her, but being more timid than brave, settled back in their chairs as the tall, blue-gowned woman started toward the road.

Mrs. Dolan still gazed at the road. Her eyes grew big with wonder. "Do you suppose it had a high, flat back and no perceptible—"

Once again the demure lady was the center of attention.

"Why, perhaps—" began one shrill voice.

"It has a high, flat back—" ventured another.

By this time the ladies were so excited they rose as one person to go down toward the road. Their hostess had almost reached the jumping object. She reached it! It jerked sideways—Mrs. Dolan caught her breath! Now the tall lady stooped and reached out her hand.

"How does she dare to touch it," whispered one of the group.

Then the tall lady grasped the object, picked it up and held it aloft.

Mrs. Dolan sank to the ground; the rest of the group hurried to the road. There they saw the tall lady with a knowing look on her face holding a tall silk hat in her hand and looking down at a huge toad.

"Well, of all—" squealed a member of the Ladies' Aid.

Behind the grape arbor in the next yard crouched Tony and Dick.

"And those raspberry tarts will be all gone by tomorrow," sighed Dick.

"You were meant for a girl," said Tony in a voice of contempt.

The Reason.

"Why did you hit Cholly over the head without provocation?"

"Because when I said I was lucky at poker somebody told me to rap on wood quick, and there was nothing else handy."

Logical Surmise.

"What kind of history is Henry preparing for his examination?"

"Judging by his language over it, I should say it was profane history."

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ITEMS

Milroy.—This place has become so healthy that the only undertaker in the village has announced his retirement from business.

Brownsville.—Authorities are looking for the person or persons who either found a pocketbook containing $2500 in Liberty bonds or who stole it from Mrs. John DeHaven on a street car between Brownsville and Uniontown.

Laporte.—Because the court house here is not in proper condition for the accommodation of women jurors, Judge Terry has instructed the Sullivan county jury commissioners not to include the names of women in the jury list of 1921.

Harrisburg.—Payments of the state treasury in December were $8,452,952.45, or within $150,000 of the record breaking payments of November, but the receipts of $8,952,140.20 were almost $7,000,000 less than in the previous month, which closed the fiscal year. The aggregate of the balances at the end of December was $12,401,081.26, of which $7,501,629.43 was in the road fund.

Shraon.—An attempt to rob the foreign department of the Colonial Trust company, of Farrel, was frustrated by I. G. Schlesinger, manager. Two foreigners, either Greeks or Spaniards, entered the bank and each pointing a gun at Schlesinger told him to throw up his hands. There was no one in the bank at the time except Schlesinger and his clerk, Miss Anna Mondich. Schlesinger did not heed the command and secured his own gun and fired a shot at the men, who retreated from the room, firing five or six shots at Schlesinger, who dodged behind a counter. One of the bullets broke a plate glass window. The would-be robbers reached the sidewalk and they made their escape. Miss Mondich, alarmed at the shooting, took refuge behind a safe. No one was hit by the bullets.

Huntingdon.—When Jacob S. Sharpshooter, a carpenter, did not answer the family call to breakfast his son went in search of him and found his lifeless body, with a rope about the neck, hanging from a rafter. He was 71 years old and had been suffering from melancholia caused by a nervous breakdown.

Uniontown.—It will be a long time before any one else in Uniontown reports the progress of a poker game, since Mayor Smart imposed a fine of $20 upon a certain informant and discharged the participants of the game. It was 3.15 a. m. when Thomas Antoon reported to the police station that gambling was in progress on a fruit stand in the center of the business district. Police responded, and arrested five men. They were arraigned before the mayor, who discharged the five and fined Antoon $20.

Pittsburgh.—A full page advertisement in the last edition of the Pittsburgh Leader asked, in big black type, "Isn't Something Out of Order?" and then followed questions, including: "Why do we have whisky in Pittsburgh?" "Why can't the United States government enforce the laws?" The advertisement, which attracted wide attention, is said to be backed by influential business and professional men throughout the country, whose purpose is to create sentiment in favor of a rigid enforcement of the eighteenth amendment.

Bethlehem.—In line with the re-trenchment policy and announcement that the city pay roll is to be reduced about $50,000 this year, a number of resignations in city offices became effective, including that of Assistant Assessors Michael McBride and Paul Kemp Smith and Samuel Brown, real estate clerk in the engineers' department.

Butler.—The tightening up of the police on gambling houses, poolrooms and other establishments has caused the price of bootleg whisky to take a jump, in one case to $7 a half pint. Heretofore $15 a quart had prevailed.

Charlottesville.—Frank Coven, of Fallow field township, was placed in jail here on order of the coroner, to be held pending investigation into the death of his wife, who was shot and killed Sunday. Coven said his wife had shot herself following a quarrel.

Uniontown.—For the first time in many years the three plants of the Oliver & Snyder Steel company at Oliver have been closed, temporarily, it is said. Officials declare this action necessary pending placement of contracts for the first six months of 1921. Nearly 1000 men are thrown out of work.

Connellsville.—It is the general opinion in the Connellsville coke region that a wage reduction among the coke workers and coal diggers, approximating between 15 and 25 per cent will be announced by the H. C. Frick Coke company and that the independent operators will follow suit.

New Brighton.—Thieves entered the Eagles' club house and stole $520 which Paul Herrington, the steward, had concealed in two tin boxes.

Uniontown.—Arrests in this city in 1920, as compared with the preceding year, show a decrease of more than 1000.

Columbia.—Joseph A. Dearbeck, aged 75, died shortly after being admitted to the Columbia hospital from injuries received when struck by a traveling crane.

Harrisburg.—The January meeting of the board of pardons will be held January 19.

Uniontown.—Burglars who attempted to batter open the safe of in the Baltimore and Ohio station here were frightened away by Night Watchman LaClair before they could get anything of value.

Altoona.—Glutinous coal operators in the Central Pennsylvania field have decided to stop paying a bonus to miners to stimulate production and will go back to the scale of January 1, 1920.

Connellsville.—Figures announced by E. T. Lyne, city assessor, show the assessed valuation of this city is $7,809,544 for 1921. This is an increase of $922,184 over 1920. The increase will add $14,000 to the taxes.

Harrisburg.—Governor Sproul approved the agreement between the state and federal government whereby Pennsylvania will receive $60,000 for rehabilitation work among persons injured in industrial accidents. The state appropriation for the purpose is $100,000.

York.—York county's tax rate will be nine mills for the coming year if a recommendation of the York County Good Roads Association be adopted by the county commissioners. The rate for 1920 has been six mills, and the increase is desired by the Good Roads Association in order that plans for highway improvement may be carried out. The commissioners say that widows' pensions and the need of better polling places are other items of expense that will necessitate an increase of the rate for 1921.

Washington.—The result of an order that went out from Burgess Lillian B. Brownlee, Washington's "Lady" executive and the only woman holding such a position in the state, to Chief of Police Llewellyn to immediately "clean up" the town, is awaited with intense interest here. Burgess Brownlee concentrated her first efforts for improved municipal government on gambling joints and poolrooms. She instructed the police chief to serve notice on proprietors of poolrooms that all minors must be kept out of their places, and that gambling, which is said to flourish most stop immediately. Furthermore, she ordered all gambling houses closed. She informed the chief she had been given evidence of the existence of illegal joints that would warrant prosecutions, and that if her order was not enforced at once, arrests would be made.

Sunbury.—Stockholders of the City Insurance company, of Pittsburgh, and the North Branch Fire Insurance company, of Sunbury, voted to merge into one concern, with offices here.

Mount Wolf.—Nine-year-old Charles Murphy, of this place, sustained a severe scalp wound, and George Barshinger, also aged nine, of Dallastown, broke his collar bone in the first coasting accidents of the winter in York.

Towanda.—In filling the Bradford county jury wheel for this year, the officials included the names of several hundred women.

Pittsburgh.—Hyman Friss, aged thirty-nine, route manager for the United Baking company, was killed and two other men were seriously injured when two motor trucks collided. Friss, who was teaching a new driver a route on the North Side, died almost instantly.

Altoona.—John B. Harnden, registration assessor in the Tenth ward, will keep his promise, made last fall, to encourage women to vote, to give an orange to the first 100 women in his ward to register. He will leave for Florida in a few days, and pick them and send them north. He already has obtained the list.

Altoona.—Arrest of six employees of the Altoona Merchandising company on charges of larceny by bailee disclosed that thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise had been stolen from the company and sold to outsiders. Seven grocers have been charged with receiving stolen goods and will be given a hearing later. The employees have confessed, the police say, one stating that his share of the loot was $35 a week.

Greensburg.—Harry Coven, whose wife was found dead in their home at Maple Creek, near Monessen, is being held by the police at the latter place on the advice of the district attorney. Coven denies responsibility for his wife's death and says that the woman shot herself when he refused to kiss her. Her father, who was in the house at the time of the shooting, says that Coven and his wife went into the room and that, after the shooting, he saw Coven standing over her with a pistol in his hand.

Uniontown.—Three hundred cases of whisky being transported from a distillery at North Belle Vernon to New York were confiscated by Fayette county officers when one truck slipped over a fifteen-foot embankment in the mountains on the National pike Monto Goldstein, of Pittsburgh, alleged to have been in charge of the caravan, and four others are being detained here while the withdrawal permits are being investigated.

Reading.—The 1920 weddings exceeded the divorces 5 to 1 in Reading and Berks, according to the licenses issued and divorces granted by the Berks court. There were 1866 marriage licenses, against 369 divorces; in 1919 the marriage licenses numbered 1877 and there were 231 divorces.

Bloomburg.—Falling on a butcher knife, which slashed out one eye, seven-year-old Donald Coleman narrowly escaped death.

Lewistown.—Former Sheriff Albert C. Kemmerling was run down by an automobile and painfully injured.

Schuylkill Haven.—Alleged to have left his horse so long in the cold that it was paralyzed and had to be shot, F. C. Bateman is held in bail.

Altoona.—Skidding on a steep hill here a taxicab overturned and Mrs. Ida Campbell, one of four passengers suffered a broken nose and collar bone.

FARM ANIMALS

SIMPLE FORM OF ORGANIZING

No Capital Is Required, Farmers of Community Meeting and Selecting Officers.

The simple form of organization that suffices for co-operative live-stock shipping associations is one of their leading features. In the first place, practically no capital is required, since payment is not made to members for stock shipped until the returns are received from the market. To organize, it is necessary only that the farmers of a community meet together, adopt a simple constitution and by-laws, and elect officers and a board of directors, who in turn appoint a manager.

Although in order to transact business it is not necessary for an association of this nature to incorporate under the state laws, it is advisable to do so as a protection to the members. If not incorporated, the organization, as such, can not sue or be sued, and in case of the loss of stock from railroad wrecks or other cause the manager could not enforce claims for the association, but each shipper would be compelled to present claims for his own losses. The cost of incorporating is comparatively small—usually not more than $10.

The United States department of agriculture will furnish, on request, the essentials of a model constitution and by-laws.

ENTIRE ABSENCE OF SCRUBS

Ohio Breeder, Recently Enrolled for "Better Sires" Keeps Nothing But Purebreds.

With the gradually increasing enrollment in the "Better Sires" movement, the United States department of agriculture notes unusual interest in registration of sires. Many enrollment blanks on which breeding stock is reported contain the name and registry number of stock, although such information is not specifically asked for. A recent enrollment from a live stock owner in Athens county, Ohio, shows that all his sires—a Shorthorn bull, a Berkshire boar, and a Delaware ram—were registered stock of good quality. In addition he kept a registered collie dog. Furthermore, his Rhode Island Red poultry were all standard-bred.

The result of using purebred sires is shown by the entire absence of scrubs on the farm. All the female animals listed were grades, cross breeds or pure breeds.

FORAGE SUPERIOR FOR HOGS

Extremely High Prices Make It Profitable to Substitute Grass Crops for Grain.

With the present extremely high prices of grain it is profitable to substitute, as far as possible, forage crops for grain feeds. A saving of 15 to 25 per cent of the total amount of grain and supplements may be expected through the use of forage. Pasture crops, when combined with grain feeds, will produce the cheapest rations for both breeding and fattening hogs, and the cost of gains will range from one-sixth to one-fourth cheaper than when the grain is fed in a dry lot.

It may be possible, in some cases, with an abundance of good forage, to obtain fairly satisfactory gains for a time on such forage alone, but the greatest returns have been obtained when grain was fed in addition to the forage at the rate of two to three per cent of the weight of the hogs per day.

SILAGE LACKING IN PROTEIN

When Fed Without Some Supplementary Feed Less Satisfactory Results Are Obtained.

Silage is lacking in protein and should be supplemented by some concentrate high in protein. When fed without this supplementary feed, less satisfactory results can be expected than when it is properly supplemented. The most economical and most satisfactory proportion in which to feed cottonseed meal to fattening cattle receiving silage is approximately 2.5 pounds daily a thousand pounds of live weight.

GOV. SPROUL DECLARES HE RECOGNIZES NO FACTIONS

Harrisburg, Jan. 17.—I don't recognize factions in the Republican party in Pennsylvania and I have no misunderstanding with Senator Boise Penrose," Gov. Sproul said upon arrival in the city, after spending the week-end at Chester. The governor was visited by many legislators and, in commenting upon the legislative situation, said:

"I promised when I came here that I would not be factional. I have not been and I don't know any factions in the Republican party in Pennsylvania. Furthermore, I promised I would not use the power of this office for political advantage or to control legislation. I have not and I certainly feel that I can get along very well with the people who are here. The plan suggested by the president pro tem. of the senate and the speaker of the house are very satisfactory to me and I expect to work right along with them.

"Have no misunderstanding with Senator Penrose: on the contrary I am in full accord with the few suggestions he has made and I want to say he has treated me with the greatest courtesy and consideration."

A PRETENSE AND A FRAUD

As made up by the Senate Finance Committee to be favorably reported Tuesday, The Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill is a protective pretension and fraud. And in so far as it is genuinely protective it will operate chiefly against the farmer in whose name it has been written.

If the practical effect of this measure were to correspond to the professed intent of its framers there would fall upon them such a blast of popular indignation as would shiver them up in short order. For their professed intent is to a rest the necessities and turn them upward again. But the practical effect of such provisions of the bill as increase the duties on wheat and corn and most other staple articles of agriculture will be little or nothing, since the United States is the produce and exporter of a surplus whose price in the foreign market necessarily affects the price of the whole product.

Still pretending to be a bill to protect the farmer, it is no less a fraud in its offers of real protection as they are to be found in the provisions for higher duties on refined sugar and frozen meats. These will operate to increase prices, but the American farmer will of course never know it, though the sugar-refiners and the Beef Trust certainly will.

There is some sincerity back of this measure without doubt. It is to be found with those elders in Congress who were originally elected on a song of tariff as the basis of national well-being and who know no other. But in the main the bill is the work of men capable of understanding that the old order of the Nation in this respect has lately suffered change. They are men who know better than to suppose that a high-tariff policy which might be tolerable or even helpful to the country in the position of an international debtor can be anything but commercially hurtful to the country as an international creditor.—N. Dear Sir:—
I wish to thank you and the Equitable Life for prompt settlement of Mr. Miller's policies which matured by the death of Mr. Miller. His one policy had the double indemnity clause and as his death was the result of an accident the Equitable paid double the face of the policy. Mr. Miller during his life, matured a policy and we found the Equitable and yourself prompt in the settlement of same.

Yours truly,
Catharine E. Miller.

BEDFORD TESTIMONY

HOMIE PROOF, HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE
When you see Doan's Kidney Pills recommended in this paper you most always find the recommender a Bedford resident. It's the same everywhere in 3,800 towns in the U. S. Fifty thousand people publicly thank Doan's. What other kidney remedy can give this proof of merit, honesty and truth? Home testimony must be true or it could not be published here. Read this Bedford recommendation. Then insist on having Doan's. You will know what you are getting:

William H. Trout, 202 Spring St. says: "About a year ago I was doing some heavy lifting and a day or so after I noticed a bad pain in the small of my back. I had awful headaches in the morning and there were pains all over me when I tried to bend over. I was almost doubled up with the pains in my back. One of the family who is a great believer in Doan's Kidney Pills induced me to try them. After taking half a box the pain in my back gradually left and after continuing the use of Doan's a while longer, all these symptoms of kidney trouble disappeared. I cannot say enough for this remedy and I am glad of the opportunity to endorse them.

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Trout had. Foster Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

"RAT CRUSADE" WEEK.

Preparations for the "War on Rats" have been completed and the week of January 24 to 29 will be devoted to ridding our town of these pests. Everyone, young, old and middle-aged, is urged to join in the search for the hiding place and to assist in the extermination of rodents, which are undermining and destroying property as well as carrying disease. Some sections of the town are suffering more than others from the depredation of the pests and the only way to get rid of them is by combined effort and the further exhibition of that quality of "sticktoitiveness" Bedford people have shown in previous clean-up methods.

The Committee has arranged to give prizes to the boys and girls who can furnish conclusive evidence that they have killed the greatest number of RATS. Two prizes (first and second) will be awarded the boys in the contest; likewise, to the girls. Rev. Caldwell will explain the plans to the pupils on Monday at school. Already gratifying reports as to numbers of rats killed have been coming in to the Committee and it is the earnest hope that at the end of the week not one RAT can be found in Bedford.

Throw Things, Professor Tells Wives to Cure Nagging Husbands

Chicago, Jan. 17.—"If husbands are just downright mean and devilish, swing on them with whatever comes handy" is the advice Prof. Gault of Northwestern University will give in a series of lectures on how to manage the household.

On the other hand, Prof. Gault says, there are many times when a man, harassed by business worries, needs a lot of "mothering". The wise wife will be able to distinguish between the real worries and the sham disposition and treat the case on its merits.

"The nagging husband should be handled quickly and thoroughly, the professor says. "For him a dishpan full of greasy, soapy water is a good starter. If this does not do the work, smooth out the wrinkles in his disposition with a rolling pin or a flatiron."

"Wives also owe it to their husbands and themselves to see that indigestion is not at the bottom of many of their differences. In such a case the wife should pass up all her social affairs, get into the kitchen, brush up on her cooking and thus eliminate this frequent cause for surly, grumpy husbands."

Kill Is His Motto.
No mammal in the entire world, great or small can compare with the weasel as hunters. They hunt their prey incessantly, following it by scent, and take the lives of a far larger number of victims than they need for food, says the American Naturalist Magazine. "They hunt by scent, and it is only during the cold winter when game is scarce that they have slain."

FREE YOUR BLOOD FROM POISON

Take Pepto-Mangan, the Famous Blood Tonic Prescribed by Physicians for 30 Years

Sluggish blood clogged with poisons makes you lazy. You never feel like getting up in the morning. And when you do get up, you miss that feeling of refreshing rest. You feel more tired than when you went to bed. After a good night's sleep you should get up with a spring, feeling alive, renewed, refreshed.

And you would, too, if your blood were full of red corpuscles. Your complexion would look fresh and your eyes bright and clear; you would feel the warm tingle of good health.

Look to your blood if you have that lazy, heavy feeling in the morning. Begin taking Pepto-Mangan—ideal tonic. It has blood-building properties that pick you up and give you strength.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. It is prepared in both liquid and tablet form. Both have the same medicinal properties.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." Ask for it by the full name "Gude's Pepto Mangan," is on the package.

GET WISE

Bill Hellwanger got up before daylight yesterday morning and began shooting firecrackers and cutting all sort of capers and in order to get him quieted down so that the rest of the town might finish its early morning nap, the Assistant Constable had to go and take Bill in charge, and on investigating it was found that he was just coming to himself. On Christmas Eve Bill engaged in drinking some kind of home brew and when he finally came to himself yesterday morning he thought it was Christmas morning and the proper time for shooting of firecrackers and celebrating in general. When told it was near the middle of January he would not believe it until the Assistant Constable took him to the post office and showed him the calendar. Bill says he will never be able to account for half of the month of January 1921. Anyway he wishes everybody in the world a happy and prosperous New Year.

CIVIC CLUB MET AND HEARD INTERESTING TALKS BY DR. NOBLE

The meeting of the Bedford Civic Club on Jan. 10 was well attended. The membership is increasing in number and attendance and in interest. So far this year, nine new members have enrolled—presenting names that have never before appeared on the books. We like this record. We are pleased with this interest.

The meeting of Jan. 10 was addressed by Doctor Mary Noble of the State Department of Health. Dr. Noble talked at length on three main topics relative to the general principles of health; these were: Diet, Posture, (the physical position of the body in standing, walking and sitting) and Mental Attitudes. She laid great stress on this important finality. Her talk was excellent and the Club gave her a rising vote of thanks as well as applause.

Doctor Noble gave several talks at the School House to Mothers and friends; and to High School girls and eighth grade pupils. The writer of this column attended these lectures from a sense of interest in the cause, not for the purpose of reporting Dr. Noble's talk; but we feel that we would be derelict, indeed if we failed to mention the high value of her addresses at the School House to Mothers and daughters. Dr. Noble not only possesses the knowledge of her subject but has the charm of presenting it with a vast amount of human understanding and sympathy. She cleared the mind of the child of any misunderstanding or even temporary relationship to one another. Dr. Noble seemed to win the minds and hearts of the High School girls who, since her departure, have given her much praise and appreciation.

"We may laugh, if we like, at 'Little specks of powder; little dabs of paint make the little freckle look as if they ain't.' But Beauty—real beauty—the kind that is a joy forever—can never be encompassed by the tie-string of a vanity bag. We all know that the good old human race has always been on a quest of Happiness—so much so that this pelled to pump the instrument all the time. He believes by such an invention he can do a great service to humanity. He is certain that he will be able to prolong the life of the Blind Man."

Now Dear Boys and Girls, get ready for the Bird Prize Contest which The Bedford Civic Club offers to you again this year. Nothing in the great out-of-doors on the beautiful Old Barth can conduct you into so many charming channels of interest as our warm little feathered friends. The Civic Club invites all boys and girls over ten years of age in grades 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, at the schools to join in the Contest. The boys and girls of decision of character. Think it over until Monday at 4 o'clock, then remember not forget to come to Miss Mary Donahoe's room to register your names. Miss Mann will be happy to meet you there and have a talk with both boys and girls in regard to the Contest plans. The Civic Club has again given $25.00 from its treasury to be used in prizes for the Contest. First Prize—$3.00 in cash and a beautiful bird book. Third Prize $1.00 in cash and a beautiful bird book.

Boys and girls receive the same prizes—no distinction made in this. "Merit" is our only motto. We are all runners in a race. Don't be afraid. Join the Contest. And remember Monday, at 4 o'clock, we will expect the boys and girls of decision to be on hand in Miss Donahoe's room. The Contest opens Monday, Jan. 24, and closes Friday, April 1st.

Just a word to everybody including all the boys and girls who are interested, send to Josiah H. Brinker, Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C. and ask him to send you Price List 39, entitled "Birds and Wild Animals," and when you receive this price list, you can secure from the same Josiah H. Brinker (one of Uncle Sam's many assistants) any information you desire for a very small sum of money. Uncle Sam is well equipped to aid you with interesting information. Now Farmers' Bulletin 609 is called—"Bird Houses and How to Build Them." It costs only 5 cents but it is full of valuable information. Send for it if the subject interests you.

Best wishes to our Boys and Girls.

A New Romance of the Storm Country

Chapter X. (Continued from last week.)

him, oh, ever so many times? No girl would do that—She blushed and studied the tip of her pretty shoe.

"Don't you, Tony, or if you don't, couldn't you?" pleaded the boy.

"I like you heaps," she breathed with suppressed emotion. She wanted to throw her arms about him right then, to tell him how she had longed to be with him, all about her promise that she would not leave the house again without some one with her. She was considering this when—

"I wanted to ask you—if you've seen that man again?" said Philip. "The one I—"

"You slung in the lake?" interrupted Tonibel, a dimple peeping out at the corner of her mouth. "No, never. I guess old Reggie thinks I'm dead, don't you?"

"I saw him in town today," he told her finally and then almost crushed himself for his brutality. She had gone so white and was looking about her helplessly.

"He'll find me, mebbe," she hesitated, a haunted expression coming into her eyes. "Mebbe he will."

"No, he won't; not if you let me help you," exclaimed Philip. "Now, listen to me! Don't go out of Cousin Paul's room for anything, no matter what. Call a servant if you want anything downstairs. And don't leave the house unless you go with me. I want your promise that you will not come downstairs. Will you give it to me?"

Tony didn't understand why she should promise this, and a whimsical thought came into her mind that she was always making promises to some one, but she couldn't refuse him, and Philip went away a little happier and feeling much more secure.

CHAPTER XI.

"I Love You More'n the Whole World!" One late afternoon Philip MacCauley started for the Pendlehaven's, desirous of seeing Tony Devon. Katherine saw him guiding his car up the roadway and ran to the door to meet him. Her smile was especially radiant, for she had begun to lose her fear about Tonibel's influence over him. "Sit down, Phil," she entreated. "Mother's sick today. Reggie almost sets her into fits."

Philip still remained standing. "And you've kept away so much, dear boy," complained the girl. "It seems you don't care for us any more."

"I do, though, but I've been busy," replied Philip, not able to think of any other excuse. "But you've always been busy, more or less," the girl shot back, "and yet you came. Mother and I have come to the conclusion that you couldn't have been very much interested in—Cousin Paul's protégée. You haven't even asked about her."

Philip coughed embarrassedly, then laughed. "The fact is, I came to see her today," he exclaimed.

Katherine went wax white. "What do you want to see her for?" she asked sharply.

"Oh, just to talk to her," replied MacCauley, awkwardly. "Katherine shook her head. "I don't believe you can," she protested dubiously.

"Cousin John won't let any of us go up to Paul's room, and she never comes down any more." "Where's Reggie?" demanded the boy.

"Oh, he's gone to Trumansburg today," answered Katherine. "He'll never come back. He keeps mother in tears most of the time he's here."

"And Cousin John! I want to ask him if I can take Miss Devon—" Katherine's head went up in disdain.

"I know what you want to ask him," she interrupted tartly. "But you needn't waste your sympathy on that Devon Girl. But mamma says—" Before she could tell him her mother's opinion, the door opened and Dr. Pendlehaven walked in.

"Cousin John," said Philip, abruptly, going to him, "may I take Miss—Miss Devon out for a little ride? I'll promise to bring her back in an hour."

The doctor looked at the boy's dark pleading eyes, looked and then smiled. "Perhaps you won't have any better luck than I have had, son," he answered with a little laugh. "I've almost been down on my knees to the child, and she absolutely refuses."

"Mother's dreadfully against her riding in our car, Cousin John," Katherine cried in thin, throaty tones. "The thought of it makes her sick."

"Your mother's not really sick, my dear Katherine," the doctor asserted. "Ah, here she is. Katherine was just speaking of you, my dear Sarah." A merry twinkle came into his eyes as he turned on his cousin.

"Now, was she?" smirked Mrs. Curtis. "What were you saying, Kathie?" Katherine lifted her eyes, slumbering with passionate anger.

"That you would dislike Cousin Paul's—I mean that girl up there—taken out for a drive," replied Katherine.

Mrs. Curtis caught her daughter's expression and looked at Dr. John, then at Philip.

"Well, I should say I wouldn't like it," she ejaculated. "There's a limit to all things. What in the world would the neighbors say to such an outrage?"

Dr. Pendlehaven's face gathered a dark look.

"If she'll go with Philip, Sarah," he said, "I wouldn't give a hang what the neighbors said. Come along up, Phil, and ask her."

"Cousin John!" cried Mrs. Curtis. "And, oh, Cousin John," gasped Katherine. But the doctor was too angry to pay any heed to them.

"You really want to take the child, my lad?" he asked, smiling at MacCauley.

"Yes, do let me," blurted the boy. "Let's go up now."

They had no more than closed the door when Katherine burst into tears, and Mrs. Curtis plumped down into a chair in a spell of hysterics.

"The little trollop," she cried. "Oh, I'd like—"

"I'd like to kill her," burst forth Katherine. "Mother, if you don't do something for me, I'll die. Oh, to think of it; he takes her out when he could take me! Oh, God! Oh, dear God, help me!"

Her daughter's terrible outburst brought Mrs. Curtis directly out of herself. "Don't, Kathie," she said in a whisper. "I really had no idea you cared for him so much. I will help you, poor dear. John shall listen to me this night; he certainly shall."

Meanwhile Tonibel looked up with inquiring eyes as Dr. Pendlehaven walked in. He had closed Philip on the outside of the door.

The girl gave him a slight smile. The doctor came forward and took hold of her hand.

"Paul," he asked, looking at his brother, "could you spare our little girl for an hour? I want her to go out."

Tonibel, remembering her promise to Philip, rose to her feet. "I don't want to," she trembled. "I'd rather stay here. I'd really rather stay here."

Pendlehaven went to the door and opened it, and Philip walked in.

"Here's a young man, Miss Tony Devon," he said, laughing at the sight of the girl's puzzled face, "who tells me she wants you to drive with him."

Now, what do you say?" "Say yes, darling Tony," Philip ejaculated with sparkling eyes.

"Oh, that's how the land lies, is it?" said Dr. John under his breath. Then aloud, "I didn't know this thing had gotten to the 'daring' point, Philip."

"Tonibel's face grew poppy red, and she stood with her eyes cast down and her hands clasped nervously. Oh!

how she wanted to go; now her boy had come for her.

"You will go, Tony?" begged Philip, his face very red from John's speech. "If—if—" the girl stammered.

John Pendlehaven laughed. "She can go, can't she, Paul?" he asked. "Phil will take good care of her."

Paul Pendlehaven smiled and sighed.

"Of course, she can go! She ought to!" he said. "She stays in too close. I've told her that every day. Go along, little maid, but come back to your old uncle in a little while."

Philip seized her hand to lead her away, but Tony turned to the bed. Then she stooped and kissed Paul Pendlehaven impulsively.

"I love you," she whispered, "and mebbe I'll only be half an hour before I'm back to you."

For many minutes after the car started Philip paid strict attention to his driving, and Tonibel allowed herself the luxury of taking a sidelong look at him now and then. Once within sight of Beebe Lake, Captain MacCauley slowed down and stopped.

"God, how I've prayed for this minute," he exclaimed, turning on her suddenly.

"I have, too," said Tonibel in a shy, sweet voice. "I thought you'd forgotten about me."

"Why, I couldn't do my work half way well, I've thought about you so much," cried the boy, "and I've been planning a lot for you and me. You see, Dr. John is a sort of a guardian to me, and next year I'll be twenty-three. Then I have all my own money. I can get married then, if I want to."

"Oh," said Tonibel in a queer little voice.

"Yes, I believe in early marriages," Philip went on emphatically. "Wasn't it a queer thing that all the while I was haunting the shore you were in the house, my house almost? You see, I live just next door to you."

"Oh!" Tony said again. Something had hurt her dreadfully. Something he had said. He might be married next year and, of course, it would be to Katherine.

"And time and again I heard how much some little girl was helping Dr. Paul," he went on. "But somehow I never heard your name and hadn't the last idea—" He stopped. Then he slipped his arm about her. "I didn't know she was my little girl," he finished.

Tony closed her eyes. All the unhappiness of the past weeks left her that moment like a vanished burden. He had said she was his little girl. How very lovely the world was!

"Lean against me, dear," murmured Philip. "And this time—Oh, Tony, don't leave me today without telling me you love me a lot!"

Tony glimpsed him with one little upward glance. Her eyes were star-bright.

"I love you more'n the whole world," she trembled. "More'n I know how to tell."

It isn't any one's affair just how many times Philip made Tony tell him she'd marry him, nor is it any one's affair how many times he kissed her, but it is our business to listen to Philip's conclusion.

"I'm going to tell Cousin John and Cousin Paul tonight that we're going to be married," he said, and Tonibel had no inclination to forbid him.

With dark thoughts, Katherine was watching for them to come back again. She saw the happy shining face of the girl, saw Philip lift the little figure from the car and draw her up the steps. Her teeth came together in sharp misery as she turned from the window and went upstairs.

CHAPTER XII.

A Little Drop of Something. Reginald was sitting in his mother's room that evening when his sister opened the door and entered. The girl looked about for Mrs. Curtis, then picked up a cigarette and lit it. She was so white and drawn looking that her brother stared at her.

"What's the matter, sis?" he asked with no particular interest in his voice. "I hate everybody in the world," snapped the girl.

"Where! That's some hate," laughed Reggie.

Katherine threw herself down on the divan.

"Worst of any one I hate Paul Pendlehaven and next—well, next I hate Cousin John," she said between her teeth. "I wish, oh, how I wish Paul would die tonight. If it weren't for him, we'd all have money, and if it weren't for that girl with him, he'd die."

"Well, I might cheer you up a little if I told you that perhaps before long your illustrious Cousin Paul will be under the sod."

The girl sat up and stared at him. "Don't be a fool, Reggie," she said with a sneer. "Cousin John says Paul will be able to go out of the house very soon, that by next week he can go anywhere he likes."

Reginald got up lazily. He said something under his breath that made his sister struggle to her feet. She stood a moment and gazed with startled eyes at the door that had closed Reggie on the other side of it.

"Now, what'd he mean by that?" she wondered dully. "What did he mean by saying that if he could help it Cousin Paul would never drive again. I wonder just what he meant by that!"

Reggie knew what he meant by his words if Katherine didn't. He intended to put Dr. Paul out of the way, thus helping his mother as well as himself. He wanted to get away from Ithaca, to leave the town that always put him in mind of Tonibel Devon. The least wind that blew brought back the awful moment when he and Tony had discovered the girl had drowned herself, and because of his tormenting conscience he drank more heavily every day. After leaving his sister he went to his room where he filled himself up with brandy. The drunker he got the more dim grew the picture of Tony's pale, terrified face.

He slept suddenly for an hour or so and only awoke when a servant rapped at the door and told him dinner was ready. He was too ill to get up and lay staring hopelessly about the room. Then suddenly out of the shadows in the corner floated Tonibel Devon. He groaned and turned slowly in the bed. Instead of getting better he was getting worse. The ghost of Devon's daughter was haunting him in every one of his sober hours. He hated Ithaca and every one in it. If Dr. Paul were dead—

He sat up, his head whirling. He crawled to the floor, went to the bathroom and soaked his head in cold water. Then he sent a servant for a pot of strong coffee.

So happy was Dr. Paul to have Tonibel back that he insisted on sitting up to his dinner.

"It was a long hour, my dear," he said, smiling. "But I'm glad you went out. He's a nice fellow, Philip. My brother and I have often wished our young cousin would pattern after him, but it does seem as if nothing can be done with him. Even his mother has no influence over him."

"I've never seen him," stated Tonibel.

"He's scarcely ever at home," answered Dr. Paul, "and the worst of it is, he gives no explanation as to where he goes."

Then after dinner as usual Tonibel, with Gustie Piglet in her arms, read from the Bible. The clock struck ten when she arose softly and began to prepare for the night. By the even breathing of the man on the bed she knew he was asleep, and as quiet as a mouse she crept about softly so as not to arouse him. The suite directly back of Paul Pendlehaven's had been given to her. She went into her bedroom and made ready to retire. Then over her night robe she drew a light kimono.

She turned off the electric switch and stood near the window looking out. Her heart sang with gladness. She had but to hearken back to the afternoon to hear a dear voice telling her of a great love, love for her, Tonibel Devon. How very much she had to be thankful for!

Suddenly she saw the tall tree directly in front of Dr. Paul's room shake as if a giant hand were clutching at its roots. How could that be? There wasn't any wind, not even a breeze. Her heart jumped into her throat as she crept away from the window and back into Pendlehaven's room. The little night lamp glimmered dimly above the small table with its load of medicine glasses. She stood in the shadow and peered through the screen. There among the dripping branches was the quiet figure of a man.

Her mind went immediately to her father, but she put the thought of him away, for the form in the tree was much more slender than Uriah Devon's.

Dr. Pendlehaven still slept, his face turned toward the wall, and Tonibel squatted down at the foot of the bed, keeping the dark figure in the tree in the line of her vision. She dared not leave the room, nor dared she call out. How often Dr. John had told her that his brother must be kept free from shocks of every kind. For another ten minutes she leaned her chin on her hand, still keeping her eyes on the window. Then she saw the flutter of a wistaria branch against the screen and knew that the hour had come. Another tense silence for several minutes, then a little scraping sound as if a sharp instrument was moving over wire. Some one was trying to get in. Tonibel crawled forward on her knees until she was directly in front of Dr. Paul.

She sank back against the bed and waited. The scraping sound at length ceased. With a forward shove of her head, Tonibel saw that the wire netting had been ripped fully a foot, and then she saw a hand move little by little through the opening, until a long arm was fully inside the room. Tony watched it, fascinated. Then she saw it waver toward the table, pause, open and lay some little pellets down without a sound. Then long white fingers drew off the covers of the glasses noiselessly and picked up the pellets one after another and dropped them silently into the medicine. As quietly the covers were restored, and the arm slowly withdrawn. Directly beneath the window, Tonibel rose up.

There through the faint light she was staring into the face of Reginald Brown. Instantly she recognized him, and all the terror of that day when he and her brutal father had placed a menacing shadow over her swept her nearly off her feet. Reginald had come not only to harm Paul Pendlehaven, but to get her! "Stand by, Salvation of the Lord," shot across her tortured soul, and then through the break in the wire netting she thrust her clenched fist. Reginald took the blow she gave him without an audible sound and fell backward into the garden below. He was paralyzed by the blazing eyes and the memory that the body of the ghost-girl was somewhere beneath the broad surface of Lake Cayuga.

Tonibel heard him land on the soft grass, and for a few seconds she stood panting against the window. Then she withdrew her arm and crouched down on the floor.

What had her father's pal put in Dr. Paul's medicine? Minute by minute she became more acutely sure that no good had been intended. Silently she took up the glasses and carried them to her own room. Then she slipped out into the hall, ran along the corridor and rapped softly on John Pendlehaven's apartments. Twice she repeated her summons in nervous little rap-taps that penetrated Dr. John's sound slumber. When he recognized her, opened the door and noticed how white she was, he drew her instantly to him and shut the door.

Between chattering teeth she began to tell him the dreadful tale. As she went on with the story the listener's face grew much concerned.

"Somebody's tried to poison him," he cried, taking a long breath. "My

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

THE FORD COUPE

More and more this fine enclosed car for two—but it will carry three—is growing in popular demand. Strongly built, the body rests upon that marvelous Ford chassis. It brings to its owner every modern-day convenience, easy riding—while sliding plate glass windows make it breezy and cool in hot weather; dust proof and water-proof when the windows are closed—it is cozy and comfortable in inclement and wintry weather. Then there is the durability of the car, coupled with the low economy of first cost and the saving of money in operating expenses. Behind it, and every other Ford car, is that unsurpassed "Ford After-Service" which is given by the army of Ford dealers scattered all over the country, together with some 15,000 authorized garages, until the Ford owner is always within immediate touch of dependable reliable service, where the genuine made Ford parts, and the genuine Ford methods are applied in the care of this car.

The Ford Coupe administers to a great variety of owners, from the physician to the traveling man, from the engineer to the architect, and then for a pleasure car for two it is unbeatable. We ask your early order if you want a Ford Coupe, because we want to make delivery as quickly as we can but we must have a little time. Come in and talk it over.

MANY PROMINENT MEN
COME OUT FOR TANLAC

Mayors Judges, Bankers, Lawyers, Doctors, Ministers, Editors and Well Known Business Men
Indorse It.

FEEL IT THEIR DUTY
TO OTHERS TO TALK

Come Forward and Unhesitatingly Tell Suffering Humanity What It Has Done For Them.

It is seldom, indeed that men of prominence, especially men holding high public offices, willingly express their indebtedness publicly to a proprietary medicine. Many prominent men, however, including supreme court judges, mayors of our leading cities, prominent state and county officials, leading educators, government officials and even ministers of the Gospel have deemed it their duty to come forward and tell the people what Tanlac has done for them.

These well-known men of affairs have recognized in this medicine a new discovery and a scientific triumph in the medical world. It is a well-known fact that these splendid indorsements have been given Tanlac time and time again and they will continue to be given just as often as new tests of its powers are made;
and it also explains why numbers of the big drug firms of the country are ordering it exclusively in carload lots.

Doctor Prescribes It.

Dr. J. T. Edwards, of Fayetteville, Ga., one of the best-known members of the medical profession in the state of Georgia, makes a statement that will undoubtedly produce a profound impression throughout the country.

"In my thirty years of actual practice as a licensed physician in the state of Georgia," says Dr. Edwards,
"I have never seen anything to equal Tanlac as a medicine to produce results. I have no hesitancy in recommending this medicine and I am prescribing it for my patients almost every day."

John P. Jordan, 195 Orlando St., Buffalo, N. Y., well-known proprietor of the Jordan Moving Co., who has lived in Buffalo all his life, had suffered for a year or more from stomach trouble, nervousness and a general rundown condition. He says:

"Tanlac is by far the best medicine I have ever run across and I am glad to recommend it. My appetite is so big now I don't seem to be able to satisfy it and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly. My nerves have quieted down so I sleep like a child and I have so much more strength and energy that my work is lots easier to me."

Noted Texan Talks.

Hon. Archie R. Anderson, ex-sheriff of Harris County, Texas, is unquestionably not only one of the best known, but one of the most popular men that ever held office in Texas.
He served the people in this important office for 15 consecutive years.

"I had the worst form of indigestion, suffered all the time from gas on my stomach and was continually belching up undigested food," said Mr. Anderson. "I suffered with neuralgic pains of the worst sort and nothing seemed to help me except in a temporary way."

"I began to feel better after taking my first bottle of Tanlac and have just now started on my third.
I'm a different man already."

Joseph H. York, well-known business man and highly respected citizen of Portland, Maine, says:

"I am now able to eat three square meals a day for the first time in two years. I am now sixty-nine years of age and in all my life I have never run across a medicine that I considered in a class with Tanlac. I have just finished my fourth bottle and this medicine has benefited me beyond my greatest hopes. Besides gaining sixteen pounds in weight, I have been built up and strengthened until I feel all of twenty years younger."

H. W. Hill, president of one of the most successful bankers and business men in Tennessee, said:

"I suffered from rheumatism and other ailments for many years and Tanlac has done me more good than anything I ever tried. I now wake up in the morning feeling fine."

"I'm telling all my friends about Tanlac and am recommending it to

FORMER MAYOR RECOMMENDS IT

Hon. Frank V. Evans of Birmingham, Alabama,
Makes Strong Statement.

One of the latest additions to the large and rapidly growing list of prominent men who have publicly indorsed Tanlac for the good it has done them, is the name of Hon. Frank V. Evans, former Mayor of Birmingham. Mr. Evans is one of the best-known men in public life in Alabama today, being at one time editor of one of the South's greatest newspapers, the Birmingham Age-Herald.
He was also examiner of public accounts of Alabama. In telling of the benefits he had derived from Tanlac,
Mr. Evans said:

"For years I suffered with gastritis and indigestion in the worst form. I was habitually constipated and had pains in my shoulders and headache continually. My appetite left me almost entirely and everything I would eat hurt me.
Finally I got to having awful attacks of acute indigestion, palpitation of the heart and smothering spells. For a long time I would have one or more of these spells every night and I would wake out of my restless sleep gasping for breath."

"I bought a bottle of Tanlac and to my surprise and gratification began to feel relief after taking the first few doses. I kept taking the medicine and now my recovery is simply the talk of Birmingham."

them regardless of their age and trouble."

Dr. G. W. De LaPerriere, of Winder, Ga., is not only one of the best-known physicians and druggists in the State of Georgia, but is also a man of extensive property and wide influence, ranking as one of the leading citizens of that entire section.
He has been in the drug business in Winder for 25 years.

Recently Dr. De LaPerriere wrote:
"Our people are much enthused
over the beneficial effects of Tanlac and I desire to say that it is as the most wonderful seller I ever had in this store."

Harry McAvoy, with the Alexandria Hotel of Los Angeles, one of the largest and finest hotels in Southern California, says:

"Tanlac has been worth its weight in gold to me and all the money on earth couldn't buy the good it has done me. In 1900 I suffered a general breakdown and during these twenty years I spent a small fortune searching for health. I had indigestion in its worst form and I honestly believe no man in the world suffered any more than I did. Last September I made up my mind to give Tanlac a trial and it was the greatest and happiest surprise of my life,
for I began to feel better right away."

My appetite improved. I began to sleep better and my strength gradually returned and in only a few weeks' time my troubles had all left me and I found I had gained fifteen pounds in weight. From that day to this I have positively been in the best health I ever enjoyed in my life."

Other prominent men who have indorsed Tanlac are:

Five Minute Chats
on Our Presidents

By JAMES MORGAN

(Copyright, 1920, by James Morgan.)

JAMES MADISON

1751, March 16—James Madison born at Port Conway, Va.
1772—Graduated at Princeton.
1776—In Virginia legislature.
1780-3, 1785-8—In Continental congress.
1787—In constitutional convention.
1789-97—In congress.
1794—Married Dorothy Todd Payne.
1801-9—Secretary of state.

AS JAMES MADISON made a great name for himself before entering the presidency and added nothing to it while in the White House, it must be that he was a good deal of a man but not much of a president.

Like all the more famous Virginians, Madison was not of the highest aristocracy, but the son of a plain,
well-to-do farmer in an outlying county. His early life was passed at Montpelier, the farm which his grandfather had wrested from the Indians; from it he drew his only private income and at last he was buried in its soil.
He was dependent on his father until he was fifty, when the latter died and the place became his own, with 100 slaves, who continued always to address him simply as "Master Jimmy."

Standing only five feet six inches and one-quarter inches, he was, with Grant the smallest of our presidents.
Naturally thin and frail his zeal for study nearly wrecked his health while a student at Princeton college, where for months at a time he slept only three hours out of the 24. Unfitted for military duty when the Revolution came, he went to the Virginia legislature instead. Yet this seemingly broken-down young man was destined to be the longest lived of all the presidents, with the single exception of John Adams.

When a candidate for re-election to the legislature, Madison revolted

WHO'S WHO?

By RUTH W. BAKER.

(C. 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The lobby of the Hotel Rexford is a most inconvenient place for one's bride-of an hour to dissolve into tears. At least, so thought Ned Burton. They had so far succeeded in appearing nonchalant and many years married, but Esther had been seized with stage fright as the awful person of the hotel clerk met her shrinking gaze.
"Oh, Ned!" she gasped. "Just a minute! Just a minute! They're all looking at us! Oh, I wish we hadn't—No, I don't. Oh dear, what will happen to us if your father disowns you?"
"Oh, I say, Esther, there's a good girl! Don't cry—not here, anyway.
Father's a good old scout. He'll take me back into the office all right."

Their lingering footsteps had at last brought them before the desk, and now the polite clerk was observing them with a sort of detached inquiry.
Esther tremulously nudged her husband.

"Oh—ah—O, yes, the register," exclaimed Ned. Now—Great Scott!"— the pen fell from his nerveless fingers.
"My father!"

"Where?" quavered Esther, looking nervously over her shoulder.

"Here, on the register. His name, I mean. Look here, Esther, it's a great chance for us, if he ever sees you,
well, it's all over but the cheering."

As the door of the elevator closed upon the eloping couple, an elderly gentleman strolled up to the desk.

"Have you by any chance—" then his eyes fell upon the open registers. "By George, they're here!" His eyes twinkled. "Didn't know the young cub had so much grit. I ran away with the girl I loved. He's pretty much like the old man, after all. Oh, by the way, to the clerk, 'did you happen to notice Mrs. Burton?'"

"Oh, yes, sir," the obliging clerk hastened to explain. "Not very tall, sir, brown eyes, had a white feather in her hat and—"

"Yes, sir," interrupted Mr. Burton.
"Much obliged."

Smiling to himself, he turned from the desk, then stopped abruptly. What luck! There she was right before him!

With a smile and a bow, he approached the girl, who stood watching the elevator door with anxious eyes. "I recognized you, instantly, my dear, and I—"

"My dear," indeed! interrupted the very indignant young lady. "Why, you old flirt, if you don't—"

"But, my dear young lady, I am your new father," said the embarrassed Mr.
Burton. "I was looking for—"

"Well, you may find some one who is willing to be your daughter, but I should advise you not to insult ladies in a respectable hotel," and the outraged girl swept past him into the elevator, leaving the innocent man speechless with indignation and rage.

Meanwhile Esther, who had been left in the writing room, had become tired of waiting for Ned to return with his father and a parental blessing. "I'll just stroll through the lobby," she thought. "It may give me something besides myself to think about. Oh dear, if I could only see Ned's father and talk to him, I am sure he would forgive us. Good gra-tious, there he is now!"

"Bald-headed, fidgety," whispered Esther. "I know that's Ned's father.
I am going to speak to him. Yes, I am," defiantly, although no one seemed inclined to oppose her. "I beg your pardon," she began tremulously, "but is this Mr. Burton?"

"Yes, madame, my name is Merton," replied the old gentleman testily, peering at her over the top of his gold-rimmed spectacles.

"Oh, sir, please forgive us. Truly,
it was more my fault than Ned's."

"What—what—" blurted Mr. Merton.

"Oh, I am your daughter, you know.
That is, your son—" Esther stopped, for the gentleman was looking at her askance. "Pretty good for a bachelor," he muttered to himself. "She must be crazy. I'd better not excite her." Slapping his knee jovially he exclaimed:
"Why, of course! How stupid of me!
My daughter, yes, yes."

"Oh, good! Now let me find Ned.
There he is now!"

In alarm Mr. Merton caught her arm.
He must speak soothingly to her.
"There, there. You must wait until he gets here," he wheedled.

"But he is here. Don't you see? Oh, Ned, Ned!" Esther was still trying to pull away, when Ned, talking angrily to Mr. Burton, drew near.

"I tell you, father, she is not a tyrant. What on earth are you talking about? She is as timid as a mouse!"
He was interrupted by Esther's cry.
"There she is now. Good heavens,
what is that fellow doing with her?
Here, you ruffian—"

"Lucky you came along as you did.
Keep a sharp eye on her," advised Mr.
Merton confidentially. "She's too pretty a little lunatic to—"

"Lunatic!" cried Ned and Esther in unison.

"This isn't the girl I spoke to," roared Mr. Burton. "Who the dickens—"

"I guess you'd have to excuse me," stammered Mr. Merton, backing ponderously into a passerby and finally making a blind rush for the elevator.

Peeping through the gratings of the slowly rising car, he saw the young man kiss the fair lunatic, saw the old man kiss them both, and then: "Confounded these elevators for going so fast," he muttered, as he vigorously blew his nose.

4 SUBURBAN DAYS IN 1

January 26, 27, 28, 29

Altoona Booster Stores

AN Event Extraordinary is in store for the patrons of Altoona Booster Stores next week, starting Wednesday and continuing Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Appreciating the patronage of those who have made Altoona famous as a Wednesday Shopping Center, Booster merchants will observe FOUR BIG SUBURBAN DAYS IN ONE WEEK.

January is always helpful to the thrifty shopper and to the merchant, as it is a time when shelves and tables and money are needed to display Spring merchandise, necessitating a sacrifice at prices below replacement value.

With two or three months of Jack Frost's reign yet before us and seasonable merchandise cut to the quick, FOUR SUBURBAN DAYS IN A ROW will be "circus days" in Altoona Booster Stores.

Four Suburban Days one after the other, will give those from all corners of the five counties—Bedford, Centre, Cambria, Huntingdon and Clearfield—a great chance to come and stay during the entire period.

IN BOOSTER STORES IN BOOSTER HOTELS IN BOOSTER THEATRES

The Altoona Booster Association urges you to spend your money where it will do the most good, in your district.

But—Booster Association Institutions insist that they will welcome you when you wish to buy or entertain yourself in ALTOONA.

WHEN HIS TROUBLE BEGINS

Reports direct from Marion and by way of Chairman Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee indicates that Mr. Harding has fixed April 4 as the date of an extra Congress session.

This is important among other reason is giving the time when the new President's troubles will really begin. Choosing a Cabinet, preparing his inaugural address and being sworn in are matters comparatively easy to dispose of. Mr. Harding's predecessors in office have thus found the initial March 4 a date of minor consequence to their official fortunes. What they have all come to dread is the time when they "have Congress on their hands" and not one of them has made that time any earlier than the constitutional first Monday in December unless the situation absolutely compelled a special summons to assemble.

One great reason for this tradition.

Mr. Harding has intimated that under his Administration an exception to this rule would be established. He is going to work with him. This is fine. But we notice that difference of opinion are already arising between him and Old Guard leaders as to the chief object of the extra session. It is the old story again.

BOY SCOUTS MADE

FIRE WARDENS

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 17—Gifford Pinchot, the State's Chief Forester, has announced that 25 Boy Scouts in Bedford county have registered as Forest Guides. The boys have signed pledges to protect and conserve the forest together with their wild life and plant life, and to prevent and extinguish forest fires.

The Pennsylvania Department of Forestry is supplying free buttons to all Forest Guides, and a copy of the Boy Scouts First Book of Forestry, issued by the Department of Forestry, is also given to each of them.

The Forest Guide organization was started in October by Forester Pinchot and Solan L. Parkes, Scout Executive of Reading. Mr. Parkes has been named Chief Forest Guide of Pennsylvania.
